SWEETNESS IS IN THE AIR

A report by Deasy

Valentine's Day is a day when people show their affection for another person or people by sending cards, flowers or chocolates with messages of love.

Capital Place handed out more than a thousand pieces of heart-shaped chocolate to our valued tenants on 14 February 2022.

A simple act of kindness that creates an endless ripple of sweetness.

HARI RAYA NYEPI

The Balinese New Year and a time to reflect in Silence

TRADITIONS OF NYEPI

Several days before Nyepi, a Hindu Balinese purification ceremony and ritual called Melasti takes place. During Melasti, a parade of villagers carry all the sacred objects from their temple to a nearby ocean or lakeshore. There the sacred objects are cleaned and purified with the holy water of the sea or the lake. Celebrations for Nyepi are centered on Bali and take two forms.

Firstly according to custom, the arrival of Spring is the time of year when the Lord of Hell sends all the devils to Bali, who must then be cleared out to purify the island before the new year begins. People then run through the streets of villages and towns, with their faces painted, making as much noise as they possibly can.

The evil spirits are driven away by the local people who make massive papier-mache effigies of the evil spirits called 'Ogoh Ogoh'. The Ogoh Ogoh are then paraded through towns and villages while people with their faces painted make as much noise as they possibly can to scare the monsters away. In the evening the effigies are ceremoniously burnt, followed by dancing, drinking feasting and generally unabashed partying.

THE DAY OF SILENCE

This noisy, brash festival is then followed by Nyepi, the Balinese "Day of Silence" also known as Seclusion Day. Nyepi marks the start of the Balinese Hindu Saka New Year and the arrival of spring. Beginning at 6 am and lasting until 6 am the following day, Nyepi is a day intended for self-reflection and anything that might disturb this is not allowed. This means no cooking or fires, no entertainment, no traveling, and no work of any kind is permitted.

On Nyepi, the usually busy streets of Bali fall silent and even though Nyepi is a Hindu festival, non-Hindu residents of Bali will also observe the day of silence out of respect for their fellow citizens. Tourists are free to do what they want inside their hotels but nobody is permitted onto the beaches or streets. The airport in Bali will also be closed for Nyepi and telecommunications companies even switch off internet services for a 24 hour period.

The day after Nyepi is known as Ngembak Geni, and as daily routines get back to normal, this is a day to perform religious rituals and ask forgiveness for past deeds to start the new year with a clean slate.

Capital Place wishes a warm and peaceful Nyepi to all tenants who celebrate the day.
